These preliminary, estimated year-end distributions should be treated as forward-looking information that was based on certain assumptions and information currently available to Acuity and its advisers. Actual 2009 year-end distributions will be subject to general market conditions, trading patterns and other factors that may transpire prior to the end of this year. Therefore, actual 2009 year-end distributions may be materially different from the estimated amounts set forth above. There is no absolute guarantee that these funds will pay a distribution at year-end.

It is expected that other Acuity Mutual Funds and other Acuity Pooled Funds (those not listed above) will not pay a year-end (2009) distribution, except for those funds that have a regular fixed monthly or quarterly distribution – however, this could change if there are significant changes in market and other conditions which relate to the criteria used by Acuity in determining whether a distribution should be made by a particular fund.
